MGWC Holiday Celebration and 2024 Awards & Recognitions

The December MGWC General Meeting was a true party as we celebrated the Christmas Season and honored our many award recipients. The evening featured a scrumptious "breakfast for dinner" themed buffet, a "larger than life" holiday decoration silent auction and concluded with everyone's favorite "right and left" gift exchange. Page 2 of this issue features the many recipients of awards highlighting the accomplishments of MGWC members in 2024!

President's Note

TONYA GARDNER

Many years ago, 1991 to be exact, I came to own a Christmas cactus. It was one of the flowers that was sent for my Dad's funeral. It was in a foil wrapped pot so I bought a pretty little ceramic pot to put it in. It sat on a window sill and I watered it once a week. Life was busy so I didn't think much about it. A few years later, I had little kids and didn't have much time for taking care of plants. I was just trying to keep my little girls alive! Also, I didn't really know much about house plants to be honest. I watered it and occasionally (rarely) gave it some plant food. It was a healthy enough plant. It didn't bloom every year, in fact, it hardly ever bloomed more than one or two blossoms, but the foliage was pretty and it looked nice as part of our home décor. I'm a little embarrassed to say that Christmas cactus stayed in the same little pot for well over 20 years.

Several years back, I decided that maybe I should re-pot that little plant. I had a couple of larger pottery pieces to choose from but no middle sized pots so I gave that little plant quite the upgrade! Within a month that Christmas cactus had spread out, put on new growth, and looked as if it had always belonged in that big pot. My husband and I marveled that it had even fit in the smaller pot. How could it have been only a month since it was repotted? It was like some magic-growing fairy dust had been sprinkled on it! That fall, it started blooming in October and didn't stop producing blooms until April. Not just one or two blooms... it was LOADED down with beautiful hot pink double blossoms! It has bloomed like that every year since! That's when it dawned on my dumb little brain: Plants will only grow as big as the pots we plant them in. I had never even thought about that concept before, but WOW! That principle can be applied in so many areas of life.

As we look at a new year of being Master Gardeners of Wilson County, maybe we should keep this concept in mind. As we take on new projects and expand the ones we already have in place, we will grow! True, we will grow by adding new Master Gardener interns this year, which is a great thing, but I'm not talking about growing in numbers so much. It's really about the growth that takes place when we try new things, learn new skills, and don't allow ourselves to get stuck in a rut. We should take the opportunity to visit other projects, work with different Master Gardeners, learn new techniques, and gain new appreciation for the work others do. When a plant is root bound, its growth is restricted. Often we stick with what we know because we are comfortable in our little pots, but that isn't where the growth happens. I want to encourage you to incorporate something new this year in your Master Gardener volunteer hours or CEU credits. Let's expand our range of vision and allow ourselves to blossom and grow like never before.

Growing together,

Tonya Gardner

A Year and a Day On Just a Few Acres

by Peter Larson

Peter Larson and his wife, Hillarie, own a 45 acre farm in a farming community near Ithaca, New York. The farm is a 7th generation family farm, having been deeded as a Revolutionary War plot. Peter, a successful architect, left his job at 44 years of age to renovate the family farmhouse and revitalize the family farm. They longed for a change and an opportunity to go back to his family's roots.

Peter writes about the struggles of small scale farming, though his delivery is optimistic and positive. Much of that comes from a can-do disposition, and a commitment to live in a self-reliant fashion, striving to minimize reliance on outside sources. Peter recounts their decisions to rebuild the farm prioritizing family involvement, minimal debt, careful expense management and less reliance on banks. He shares stories of raising chickens, turkeys, pigs, Dexter cattle, and garden produce in the local farmer's market and building relationships in the community that they both cherish and rely on.

A Few Acres Farm is built upon sustainable practices and regenerative farming techniques. Their livestock is pasture raised and their farming practices are healthier for the soil, producing an end product that is high quality. It is also healthier for the farm budget because they are devoted to a do-it-yourself existence, repairing their own equipment, growing their own hay, producing most of their own electricity, and heating their home with their own firewood. They eat what they raise and grow, and sell the excess to the community.

This is truly an inspirational book for those looking to homestead. It is down-to-earth textbook for those seeking a self-reliant lifestyle. Their work ethic is to "farm creatively by combining traditional farming values with progressive ideas", but to maintain a flexibility that allows them to pivot to other techniques when necessary.

General Membership Meeting Recap

2025 started with a bang with January's general membership meeting. The gathering was held in the Arnett Education building at the Wilson County Fairgrounds. The theme was our annual Chili Cook-off, and after our crew sampled many entries and cast many votes, this year's winner was Rosemary Marshall with her delicious Vegetarian Chili! (You can find Rosemary's recipe featured on page 8). The awards were presented by stellar Cook-Off Coordinators MaryJo Shockley and Peggy Fannin.

Our guest speaker was Jason Reeves. Jason grew up on a farm in West Tennessee, where he fell in love with the plant world. He received a Master's in Ornamental Horticulture and Landscape Design from the University of Tennessee. In 2002, he became a research horticulturist and curator of the University of Tennessee Gardens in Jackson. Jason's colorful plant combinations and unique garden art, made by recycling everyday objects, draw thousands of people to the Center each year. When he's not bringing the grounds to life with his imaginative garden displays, he's evaluating new plants for the state's green industry, speaking at gardening symposiums, and serving as a contributing editor to Fine Gardening magazine. In 2021 he bought a 45-acre farm where he has planted over 12,000 daffodils and hundreds of trees and shrubs. You can follow him on Facebook at Jason Reeves – in the garden.

The Old Mill

By Tonya Gardner

In November, my family and I traveled to Central Arkansas to visit family and friends. One of the stops we always make when we visit is to The Old Mill in North Little Rock. This hidden gem is located about 2 blocks from the house where I grew up. I played there often during my growing up years, and my husband even proposed to me at The Old Mill in 1988. Our daughters had many photos taken there as they were growing up, and on this trip, we brought our grandson Henry for his first visit! It is a rite of passage in our family and a destination we hold dear.

Built in 1933 under the direction of developer Justin Matthews, the mill is not a working mill, but resembles the early Arkansas grist mills of the 1800s. The grist millstone on the first floor dates back to 1828 and some of the stones used in the construction of the mill were milestones moved from a nearby road laid out more than 150 years ago by Jefferson Davis. Several sections of wrought iron used in the building were cut from the stern of a steamboat that traveled the Arkansas River in the early 1800s.

Wood-like benches, bridges and structures throughout the park are actually heavy duty concrete sculptures designed and built by the world famous sculptor Señor Dionicio Rodriguez. He used an art technique called Faux Bois that mimics the look of wood. He was so secretive about his process that no written plans or mixture formulas exist. In recent years, his great nephew was commissioned to make some necessary renovations using his special techniques. His structures are truly works of art!

The opening scene of Gone with the Wind, which was released in 1939, was filmed at the Old Mill. It is believed to be the only remaining structure from the movie. The Old Mill is also on the National Register of Historic Places.

All of the gardens throughout the park are carefully designed and maintained by the Pulaski County Master Gardeners. The Old Mill is beautiful in every season. I'm hard pressed to pick a favorite as each season at The Old Mill has its own beauty. I will say that a snowy Old Mill is pretty spectacular, but then the flowers in Spring are breathtaking too, and fall colors as the backdrop of the stone building is stunning as well. Summertime brings the ducks to the lake and the turtles come out to sun themselves, and those are always favorites of the visitors!

Chili Cook-Off
Winner!

Vegetarian Chili

By: Rosemary Marshall

Ingredients:

- 1 cup diced yellow onion
- 1 cup diced red bell pepper
- 1 cup chopped carrot
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 (15 oz) can no-sugar added tomato sauce
- 1 (15 oz) can diced fire-roasted tomatoes
- 1 (15 oz) can black beans drained and rinsed
- 1 (15 oz) can kidney beans drained and rinsed
- 1 (15 oz) can pinto beans drained and rinsed
- 1/3 cup pumpkin puree
- 2 tsp kosher salt, divided
- 1 tsp granulated garlic powder
- 1 tsp ground cumin
- 1 tsp mild chili powder
- 1 tsp smoked paprika
- 1 tbsp fresh lime juice
- 2 tbsp hot sauce (optional)

Directions:

- Heat 1 tablespoon olive oil in a large pot or Dutch Oven over medium heat. Add the onions and a pinch of salt, stirring until translucent, about 5 minutes.
- Add the bell pepper, carrot, and celery and cook an additional 2-3 minutes, stirring occasionally.
- Add the tomato sauce, diced tomatoes, black beans, kidney beans, pinto beans, 1 1/2 tsp salt, garlic powder, cumin, chili powder, smoked paprika, and pumpkin puree, stirring to combine.
- Cover, bring to a boil, then reduce to a simmer. Cook, covered, until the veggies are very tender and the chili has thickened, about 30-35 minutes, stirring occasionally.
- Uncover, stir in the lime juice and hot sauce, if using. Taste and add the remaining salt if desired.
- Add toppings such as guacamole, chopped onion, cilantro, jalapeno, avocado, sour cream, cheese, and chips if desired.

MEET THE MASTER GARDENER

Brei Pinzur

WHERE ARE YOU FROM?

I spent the first part of my life living in Oregon, about an hour from Portland. Then moved to Tennessee!

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE PLANT TO GROW?

That is a hard one.... I guess any. Although I found I really love perennials the most.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE TREE?

Blue spruce (from my childhood) and in Tennessee my favorite trees are Sycamore, red bud, or fruit trees.

DO YOU HAVE A GARDENING TRICK/TIP THAT EVERYONE SHOULD KNOW?

Use colder months to get structural aspects of your gardens fixed or prepared so you aren't having to do it in our hot summer months.

HOW LONG HAVE YOU BEEN GARDENING, OR HOW LONG HAVE YOU BEEN INTERESTED IN GARDENING?

I started gardening and native plant identification as a young child with my mom, and have continued to be interested in it.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE VEGETABLE?

My favorite vegetable is snap peas or fresh from the garden asparagus.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE FLOWER?

Originally I would say sunflowers or daisies.... however I have a collection of hydrangeas, irises, echinacea, and daffodils.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE GARDEN TOOL?

My favorite garden tool is probably a good quality cultivator.

MGWC Honors Our Own Linda Robertson

On December 8, 2024, the Master Gardeners of Wilson County were finally able to celebrate Linda Robertson receiving the Tennessee State Master Gardener of the Year award. The party was held in a lovely conference hall at the beautiful new REI Distribution Center in Lebanon, TN. Many friends and family of Linda came to share in her day, as well as quite a few Master Gardeners.

Guest speakers, such as Amy Ritter, Tina Benson, Debbie Williams, Justin Stefanski, Buddy Ingram, and Natalie Bumgarner shared many kind words about what they've learned from Linda over the years. Linda was presented with her award and a book containing pictures from many years of teaching about native plants and heart-felt tributes to Linda.

Linda proudly displays her award

It was a privilege to watch others honor Linda and hear what she means to so many. Her influence is far reaching. We celebrate you, Linda! Congrats on being Tennessee Master Gardener of the Year!
